

- The geotechnical drillhole data is further used to develop geotechnical block models – perspective view and long sections.

- The geotechnical block model is further used in the slope stability assessment – Mathew stability graphs

